TUCKER PRINTING HOUSE JACKSON MISS

The New Dormitory

MILLSAPS College is about to have supplied to her the chief material equipment for want of which she has been handicapped. The new dormitories are almost finished. The work on Burton Hall is in such a stage of advancement that we may safely say that the boys can get into it by the first of January. The central building, Galloway Hall, containing the offices, the great living room, and the dining hall, as well as the Infirmary, is well on toward completion, and will be ready in a short time.

Burton Hall, the north building, is named for our beloved Doctor John Marvin Burton, who gave his life for us and for humanity in France. While he lived he served humanity, and especially the young men of Millsaps College. Therefore it is well that his name should be commemorated by a building which is destined to serve the young men of Millsaps. May his spirit be perpetuated in the lives of the young men who reside in it!

The cut on the back cover of this Bulletin will show the outward appearance of the completed group. Galloway Hall is named for our translated Bishop, of whom it were vain to attempt to speak. Who among us does not know him as that prince—Prince Charlie, his colleagues in the bishopric called him—who was the spiritual father of the College? The third unit will be named Murrah Hall after the honored President of our Board, who formed and guided the College for nearly two decades.

Burton Hall contains twelve double rooms on the first floor, as well as a suite for a professor. It has one large bath-room and one toilet room. All baths will be showers. The second floor has eleven double rooms and one single room, one single room and bath and toilet rooms corresponding to those on the first floor.

Galloway Hall contains two offices as you enter, a large lobby, and a living room 34x42 feet in size. In the living room is a large open fireplace, and here the students may have a social hour at the close of a day's work. The dining room is back of the lobby, and is 60x64 feet in size. Between it and the kitchen is a large serving room, and, to the left, a large pantry. In the rear of the pantry is the great kitchen, containing the ranges and a large brick oven for baking.

The matron's suite of rooms is situated in the north side of the building, and she will be accessible to the students at all reasonable hours. Above her rooms on the second floor will be the infirmary, consisting of two large rooms with a bath between.

Galloway Hall will have ten double rooms for residence, in addition to the general rooms and offices of the group.

Murrah Hall will be finished between now and next September, and will duplicate Burton Hall on the north.

All buildings will be steam heated, and will be equipped with every modern convenience.

As yet these buildings are only brick and mortar, but in future years they will be cherished as the homes in which men's minds grew in learning and power, and where they prayed each night before they slept. Sweet friendships will be born and will grow there, and the traditions which will make Millsaps College greater will find there a home.

John M. Burton Post of the American Legion

Students and faculty members who are ex-service men have organized at Millsaps a post of the American Legion. A charter was recently obtained from the national headquarters, and the post has been named in honor of Professor John M. Burton, who died in France, making the supreme sacrifice for his country. Fifteen men, representing all classes, have been enrolled.

The preamble of the constitution of the American Legion states in part the purpose of the organization. "For God and Country we associate ourselves together for the following purposes: To uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States of America; to maintain law and order; to foster and perpetuate a one-hundred-per-cent Americanism; to preserve the memories and incidents of our association in the Great War; to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state and nation; to make right the master of might; to promote peace and good will on earth; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of justice, freedom and democracy; to consecrate and sanctify our comradeship by our devotion to mutual helpfulness."

The following are the charter members of the organization: J. M. Howorth, C. G. Howorth, Frank C. Furgeson, J. R. Bane, W. E. Bufkin, M. C. Huntley, A. W. Bailey, W. P. Bailey, H. A. Dawson, Professor John L. Furgeson, Jr., J. W. Sells, J. E. Tumlin, C. W. Alford, A. L. Shipman, Dr. Stuart G. Noble.

Five delegates represented the post at the recent state convention at Jackson. Professor Furgeson was elected alternate delegate to the national convention.

Our New Professor of Romance Languages

Millsaps College is very fortunate in securing for the chair of Romance Languages Professor A. G. Sanders, who comes to us from Emory and Henry College.

Professor Sanders comes of distinguished Methodist ancestry, since his maternal grandfather, Rev. A. M. Shipp, D.D., was professor of Theology in Vanderbilt University, and his father, Professor S. G. Sanders, for many years held the chair of Latin in Southwestern University. Professor Sanders received his secondary education in the famous Webb School at Bellbuckle, Tennessee, and like the majority of the Webb boys has shown by his subsequent career the soundness of his scholarly foundation.

He spent three years at Southwestern University, and three years at Yale, receiving his B.A. from Yale in 1907. He was Rhodes Scholar from Connecticut from 1907 to 1910, and received the B.A. (in the Honors School) from the University of Oxford in 1910. Subsequently he received an M.A. from the University of Oxford. After leaving Oxford he was Fellow in Classics in Yale for two years. Thus he has both the liberal training in the humanities given in America and England, and also the technical type of scholarship, after the German fashion, required of the Yale Fellows in Classics.

He not only knows with great accuracy and breadth of training the French and Spanish which he teaches, but he speaks both languages with great facility, and uses them as a medium of instruction in his class-room work. He has given eminent satisfaction here as a teacher and as a man.

He supplied the chair of Greek in Emory University for one year, giving entire satisfaction, but yielding at the end of the year to the former incumbent who returned from "leave of absence."

For the past five years he has taught Romance Languages in Emory and Henry College, which position he resigned to come to Millsaps.

While at Emory and Henry he met and won the teacher of English in the Martha Washington College, Miss Mary Lewis. They were married in 1918. She is a B.A. from Smith College, Mass., and an M.A. of Columbia University. She is a charming addition to the society of the college community and of Jackson.

Professor W. P. Bales Added to Faculty

Professor W. P. Bales was elected Professor of Mathematics in the Preparatory School for this year, and College and Preparatory Coach. Professor Bales has had an unusually successful experience in coaching athletic teams, and his experience among the soldiers at Fort Oglethorpe renders him a very efficient athletic director. We are especially interested in what is known as mass athletics as used among the United States soldiers, a system that is being introduced with great success among college students.

Since he came among us he has inspired great interest in inter-class athletics, and the number who take regular exercise has greatly increased. Millsaps College now gives credit toward a degree for athletic training.

The action of the two Conferences in putting the control of athletics wholly in the hands of the Board of Trustees causes great joy among the students, who see inter-collegiate football in prospect next year.

Alumni Notes

The present class will be the twenty-fifth to be graduated from the College. The College is now in its twenty-eighth year, the first class having graduated in the third year of the College.

The first class was composed of three young men—F. M. Austin, Utica; J. G. Lilly, and H. S. Stevens, New Augusta. This was the smallest class in the history of the institution. The professions adopted by these young men were as follows: Austin, lawyer; Lilly, physician; Stevens, lawyer. Lilly and Stevens are the only survivors of the class.

The next class, that of 1896, has lost by death two of its members, which is 50 per cent of the entire class.

It is interesting to note that two members of the student body are children of members of that class. Mr. Leonard Calhoun of the Junior Class, is the son of Mr. J. T. Calhoun, and Miss Margaret Gordon Green of the Freshman Class, is the daughter of Mr. S. G. Green, whose familiar name—Gordon—she bears.

The two surviving members of the class of 1896 are employed in educational work, Mr. J. A. Applewhite being a teacher of the Deaf and Dumb in the State of Washington, and Mr. J. T. Calhoun being the efficient State Director of Rural Schools of Mississippi.

It is a long way from the classes of 1895 and 1896 to those of 1919 and 1920 as the number of graduates given above will indicate as well as the difference in dates. We will mention only one or two of each of the last classes. Messrs. F. K. Mitchell and D. S. Dearman are doing graduate work in the University of Michigan and Millsaps College, respectively. Misses Alford and Allred are teaching in Brandon and Coldwater, respectively.

It will probably be better to wait to hear from the Prophet of the Class of 1920 before too much is said. We will say, however, that three members of that class have finished all the work required of them and are now just waiting for June 8th, 1920, to receive their degrees.

Rev. H. B. Watkins, of the class of 1899, pastor of the Central Church, Meridian, is the host of the 1919 session of the Mississippi Conference. Rev. J. T. Lewis, of the same class, will be the host of the 1920 session of the North Mississippi Conference.

THE NEED OF BETTER ORGANIZATION OF THE ALUMNI ASSOCIATION."

B. E. EATON

I mean no reflection upon the Alumni of Millsaps College in making the statement that the Institution has not received from them the support to which it is entitled. This does not result from any lack of affection or appreciation or indifference to the future welfare of the college. Neither does it indicate that the Alumni are satisfied with the present scope of good that is being accomplished however great and accurate the present work may be. This lack of support proceeds from the fact that our work in behalf of Millsaps College has been sporadic. We have felt, at intervals, a sufficient enthusiasm to go out and do the work we should do but because very few had the enthusiasm at the same time it effervesced before any considerable good was accomplished. This will continue to be true unless we all plan together and act together. We cannot do this in the absence of a compact, harmonious organization. If we will so perfect ourselves in this organization that the work of every Alumnus has behind it the solid and substantial support of all the Alumni, then at least one substantial burden will be lifted from those in immediate charge of the Institution and they will be permitted to devote themselves wholly and completely to the education of the young men and women of this State.

Incidentally it may be stated that the present need for education is greater than it has ever been in the history of our Republic. Many of our young men between 21 and 31 will be lost in the war and those remaining must not only be prepared to do their own work but they must be prepared to take, as additional responsibility, the work of those lost or incapacitated by war. Undoubtedly if this need can be properly placed before each Alumnus a perfect organization and a perfect co-operation will speedily result.

RURAL EDUCATION IN MISSISSIPPI.

J. T. CALHOUN

Country schools in some counties of Mississippi have made wonderful progress within the past few years. This statement has been repeated so often that it is becoming trite, but it is true nevertheless. Hundreds of beautiful new school houses are to be seen in every portion of the state, as evidences of an awakening interest among our people.

In order that individuals may become more prosperous it is usually necessary to make larger investments; the same is true in regard to communities. There is no other investment that belongs to the entire community in the same sense as does the public school, and a good school is the pride of the entire community.

More than thirty teachers' homes have been built by the side of these country school houses within the last three or four years, and special taxes have been levied on hundreds of school districts that hitherto depended solely on the county and state for support. Our splendid colleges have turned out a very fine body of teachers who are awakening greater interest in education wherever they go.

One of the most effective plans for making better schools is by consolidation. We now have over three hundred of these schools that provide transportation at public expense. More than fifteen thousand pupils are being transported to school in Mississippi. This is done at an average expense of $2.01 per pupil per month. The cost of teaching children is much less per child in a large school than in a small one. Even if the cost of transportation is added to the cost of teachers' salaries in large schools it is not much more per pupil than the cost in small schools, sometimes less. When we take into account the difference in the quality of school work, we find that the investment in the consolidated school far outranks that in the small school. We have more consolidated schools in Mississippi using transportation, than any other Southern state.

It is to be regretted, however, that we have as yet more than twenty counties in Mississippi that do not make a county-wide levy for supplementing the state fund. The state, the county and the school district should each contribute to the support of the school. Equal opportunities should be given to all the children of the state.

Rural education is more practical than formerly. There are over one hundred separate buildings at consolidated schools for teaching domestic science and farm mechanics. Scores of these schools have various kinds of plats for teaching agriculture. Orchards are being planted, the use of farm machinery is being taught and household conveniences are being planned. In fact we are trying in our schools to teach toward the farm, not away from it.

MILLSAPS MEN IN THE SERVICE OF THE COUNTRY.

(A continuation of the list published in Vol. 1, No. 1 of the Bulletin.)

G. L. HARRELL

Since the publication of Vol. 1, No. 1, of the Millsaps College Bulletin many names have been added to the list of those who have gone into some branch of the national service. That their names may be recorded along with their compatriots we give space in this issue of the Bulletin to them.

This list as was the other is lacking in many details, especially the grade in which the man is serving and the place where located.

It is especially desired that the alumni and the men themselves furnish complete information (omitting any forbidden by the government) that the final list may be correct in every detail.

Professor J. T. Calhoun, State Rural School Supervisor, who discusses in this issue of the Bulletin "Rural Education in Mississippi," is the dean of the teaching profession among the Alumni.

Professor Calhoun entered the college during its opening session and was graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1896. He was, along with several other students during the first session, selected to organize two literary societies for the college. He was of the group that selected the name of Bishop C. B. Galloway to be that of their society.

Thus from the beginning of his college career he was a leader among his fellows.

Just previous to his graduation he was elected principal of the High School at Columbia, Miss., where he remained for several years. Later he was elected principal of the Mt. Olive School in his home county. After serving for a time there he was elected superintendent of education of Covington county where he put into operation a splendid system of rural consolidated schools.

When Hon. W. H. Smith was appointed State Superintendent of Education Professor Calhoun was appointed State Rural School Supervisor as his successor.

He has done much to improve the schools under his supervision and it is safe to say that before many years elapse there will be comparatively few one-teacher schools in the state.

Hon. B. E. Eaton, president of the Alumni Association is general counsel of the Gulf & Ship Island Railroad. His discussion of "The Need of Better Organization of the Alumni Association," is timely. The association should be well organized and there should be a county association in every county where enough members can be assembled for organization.

Mr. Eaton after graduation with both the A. B. and LL. B. degrees began the practice of law and is now among the leading men of that profession in the state.

Mr. Lamar F. Easterling, A. B. '03, LL. B. '04, has recently been appointed Chancellor of the Fifth District by the Governor to fill the unexpired term of Judge O. B. Taylor, LL. B. '06, who resigned to accept a vice-presidency of the Merchants Bank & Trust Company of Jackson.

Geo. B. Power, '97, has been filling most acceptably the post of clerk of the Mississippi House of Representatives during the present administration. There are several graduates and undergraduates representing their counties and districts in both branches of the Legislature.

Mr. R. B. Ricketts, B. S. '98, LL. B. '00, is United States Commissioner for the District in which Jackson is located.

Dr. W. L. Kennon, '00, professor in the University, is the only Alumnus thus far who has received the Ph. D. degree. Probably others in the near future will continue their courses and apply for the advanced degree.

Only three graduates thus far have been appointed to Presiding Elderships in their respective conferences: W. B. Jones, '97, Hattiesburg District, Mississippi Conference; W. W. Holmes, '00, New Orleans District, Louisiana Conference; W. L. Duren, '00, Columbus District, North Mississippi Conference.

Messrs. W. L. Duren, A. B. '02 and W. M. Buie, LL. B. '12, are the graduates serving on the Board of Trustees. Mr. W. H. Watkins a former student is also a member of the board.

Mrs. Mary Holloman Scott, A. B. '02, has the distinction of being the first "Coed" upon whom the college conferred a degree. The number of young ladies receiving degrees has steadily increased until the present when the percentage for 1917 was 38.4, while fifty per cent of the class of 1918 are young ladies.
